Can a generator power a whole house?

Large whole-house generators can power an entire average home, while smaller units provide power for key appliances. These are the best standby models from CR's tests.

What is a whole house generator?

A whole house generator, also known as a standby generator, is a device that provides backup electrical power to an entire house in the event of a power outage. It operates automatically and is designed to restore power quickly and seamlessly, allowing you to maintain essential functions and appliances in your home even when the grid power is down.

How much power does a propane home generator use?

While portable generators can average between 3,500 and 10,000 watts, propane home generators usually have a capacity starting at 10,000 watts. With the average U.S. home needing approximately 5,000 to 7,000 watts for critical appliances, the increased power of a standby propane generator allows you peace-of-mind when the power goes out.

How much propane does a Generac home standby generator need?

Propane tanks that supply fuel to a Generac home standby generator must be at least 250 gallons. However, every home is different, and so is every installation.
